Re: Objections to Subpoena Duces Tecum Directed to Non-Party Salesforce, Inc. – [redacted] L. [redacted] v. First Acceptance Insurance Company of Georgia, Inc., et al., Superior Court of DeKalb County, Georgia, Civil Action File No. 25CV10635-10

Dear Ms. [redacted]

This letter responds to the Subpoena Duces Tecum directed to Salesforce, Inc. ("Salesforce"), purportedly issued out of the Superior Court of DeKalb County and served as Salesforce's registered agent on September 24, 2026 (the "Subpoena"). Salesforce is not a party to this action. Pursuant to the applicable Rules, Salesforce submits the following written objections within the required deadline.

Validity of the Subpoena

Salesforce does not waive, and expressly reserves, all rights and objections concerning the Subpoena's validity and does not concede that the Subpoena has been properly issued or served.

Salesforce Is a Non-Party With No Direct Access to Customer Records

Salesforce is a third-party cloud services provider. Salesforce does not own, control, monitor, or have independent direct access to the content of its customer data. Salesforce is not in a position to search, retrieve, review, or produce customer account content, user records, configurations, or related data maintained by or for its customers, and in many respects lacks the technical ability to do so at all. Any records of the kind described in the Subpoena, to the extent they exist, are in the possession, custody, and control of the customer, not Salesforce.

Salesforce Is Not Equipped to Act as a Subpoena Compliance or Records Production Service

The Subpoena purports to impose open-ended obligations on Salesforce going beyond the production of its own identified business records, including obligations to interpret the scope of requests on Salesforce's behalf, to preserve and produce materials in particular formats, to furnish custodial certifications, and to make ongoing, continuing production as new information arises. Salesforce is not a document-retrieval or litigation-support vendor and does not undertake these functions.

Overbreadth and Undue Burden

Salesforce objects that the Subpoena is overbroad and unduly burdensome, including as to the scope of records sought, the number of individuals and entities identified, and the time period covered.

Additional Objections

Salesforce further objects that the Subpoena is vague and ambiguous, seeks confidential and proprietary business information, and fails to allow reasonable time to comply. Salesforce reserves all additional objections available to it under applicable law.

Salesforce reserves all rights, including the right to supplement or amend these objections. Nothing in this letter should be construed as a waiver of any objection or defense available to Salesforce, all of which are expressly reserved.

Sincerely,

Sarah Gilmer Herr

(Reply only; the quoted earlier message is not included.)

Dear Ms. [redacted]

Thank you for your October 1, 2026 email narrowing your request. Having reviewed it, Salesforce maintains the objections set out in our October 1, 2026 letter and will not be producing the records requested.

Although your email states that you are not seeking customer data, the four categories you describe are, in substance, records reflecting First Acceptance's own personnel, accounts, and system configuration. As explained in our prior letter, Salesforce's objections based on its status as a non-party without access to customer content, together with our objections on overbreadth, undue burden, and the other grounds stated, apply equally to this narrowed request and are not resolved by it.

Salesforce's position remains as stated in our October 1, 2026 letter.

Sincerely,

Sarah
